

Counting before Black Friday Sales

Black Friday will soon be here. Because of all the uncertainty and change that has happened during 2020 with the world related to health, business, and income it is important to make good decisions about sales that might be available for Black Friday/Cyber Monday. I know that I my resources are significantly less and I will not be renewing some of the items that I have purchased in the past. The piggy bank is much smaller. So a more careful priority list is being developed.