

Looking forward to Spring

It is almost the end of February and I am ready for spring. Currently there is a major snow and cold front as the weather happening. I have been spending time looking thru seed catalogs and dreaming of what new plants I want to add to my perennial garden this year.

It's cold and snowy out there so a soft chair with a cat in my lap seems like the best way to spend the day.