

Planning in 2021

Everyone seems to be promoting a planner for the new year. There are so many choices and price ranges. My mailbox got stuffed full with all sorts of offers. I think I have tried lots of different layouts and brands over the years. The dilemma of trying to have a digital version and a paper version has always been a challenge. Many of the products have appeal for a certain styling and or components. I have always seemed to cobble something together that works that is a mashed up mess. Nothing really fits because things change so quickly and focus is hard.

I still recommend and use a free annual tool that helps look back at what worked and what did not work. It helps me stay on track every year as I start planning for what to keep or do differently.

The Year Compass – <http://yearcompass.com>

<http://yearcompass.com/en>

Licenses under a Creative Commons Attribution-non commercial-sharealike 4.0 license

The Year Ahead – 20 pages in full size format. Also available in booklet format and other languages.